

Remembrance Day Supper & Concert Most Successful

The supper and concert given by the Canadian Legion on Remembrance Day proved to be the most successful affair sponsored by the Legion for several years.

In the morning a brief ceremony was held at the Memorial on the Butte, attended by the Legion and other organizations, together with men of the local non-permanent militia. Wreaths were laid in memory of fallen comrades in the Great War and for those who had given their lives while on active service in the present world conflict.

The service of remembrance was held on Sunday at St. Cyprian's Church, when the Legion, along with other returned men and the non-permanent unit paraded to the church. The service was conducted by Rev. A. D. Currie.

Two hundred and sixty persons sat down to a splendid supper served by the ladies of the Legion on Monday evening in the basement of the United Church and quite a number of late arrivals could not be served.

The concert which followed took the form of an Amateur contest and the young contestants certainly gave talented entertainment to the capacity audience.

The following were winners in the various contests:

JUNIOR

Elocution: Joan Rennie
Solo: 1 Joyce Buhr; 2 Joan Carleton.

Instrumental: Shirley Liesemer.
Duet: 1 Jean Lamont and Joyce Topley; 2 Shirley Liesemer and Norma Parsons.

SENIOR

Solo: 1 Dorothy Buhr; 2 Peggy McFarquhar; 3 Edith Sinclair and 4 Mary Jean McFarquhar.

Instrumental: 1 Douglas Wordie; 2 Verna Feeg.

Duet: Elsie and Clara Leinweber.

As a climax to the day's activities Ken Moore and his orchestra played to a full floor of enthusiastic dancers.

Explosion in Blacksmith's Shop

An explosion severe enough to break 25 panes of glass in all parts of the shop and partly wreck the line shaft fixtures, occurred at the Sinclair blacksmith shop on Tuesday morning when the carbide gas machine, which is used for welding during the warmer weather, exploded.

Before quitting work on Saturday night the carbide tank was cleaned out so that it would not freeze, as it was intended to discontinue use for the winter. However, there must have been a quantity of gas generated in the tank and, as the valves were open, it exploded when the fires were built on Tuesday morning and completely wrecked the machine.

Although Mr. Sinclair was standing quite close to the tank when the explosion occurred, and his son Herb was also in the building, neither, fortunately, received injury.

Red Cross News

The ladies who are knitting socks for the Red Cross are asked to use their own judgement as to the number of stitches to cast on to knit the regular sizes of socks. As there is a difference in wool in the various shipments, it is not possible to give definite instructions. The knitter can determine, after ascertaining the number of stitches per inch, the number of stitches to cast on.

In acknowledging the order for 75 outfits of clothing for refugee and evacuee children, Mrs. Mason, who has charge of the Red Cross Work for Alberta, writes:

"We are most grateful for the splendid assistance in the work which is so desperately needed at the present time."

Permission has been obtained from the School Board for the ladies of the Red Cross to use the sewing room at the school for two or three nights in each week. When the material arrives arrangements will be made for the nights to hold the meetings. Ladies who are willing to help please get in touch with Mrs. Friesen.

Local Trainee Top Shot at Red Deer

Ronald Brightman, who was one of the Didsbury trainees called to Red Deer, showed his mettle as a marksman when he won the Eaton Cup, presented for the highest individual score, with 94 out of a possible 100 points. The platoon, of which Ronnie was a member, were runners-up in the platoon rifle-shooting championship. Sergeant Hugh Roberts was in charge of the platoon.

Local R.A.F. Boy Gets Baptism of Bombs

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jenkins, who live east of town, have received word from their son Denis, with the R.A.F. in Great Britain.

Denis enlisted with the R.C.A.F. in Calgary, took his training in Ontario and went overseas. He states in his letter that he was recently transferred to a wireless unit of the Royal Air Force (ground staff) and underwent his baptism of bombs from a Nazi raider, who dropped a bomb about a 100 yards from him and his comrades, forcing them to stick their heads under cover. The action took place "somewhere near London."

Young Airman Has Narrow Escape

A. B. Trussler, a young airman of New Norway, Alberta, escaped with his life early Tuesday morning when his car went over the embankment at the Rosebud bridge on the highway.

He was driving south and when coming down the hill struck the guard rail on the east side of the road. The impact was so great that a timber was driven through the car and into the trunk. Rolling over the bank, the car came to rest on the roadway under the subway.

Fortunately, the timber missed the young man and he was able to climb out of the car. He was found staggering to town by Mr. Oliver Stevens at about 2 a.m. and brought to the hotel. Dr. Clarke was called and found the young man suffering from lacerations to the face and from bruises to the body. Trussler was later taken to the hospital.

A concert will be held at the United Church, Thursday, November 28th, at 8 p.m., sponsored by the W.M.S. The Didsbury School Orchestra, pupils of grades 7, 8 and 9, children of the Mission Band and other singing and elocution "stars" will contribute to the program. There will also be a play. A silver collection will be taken. Reserve Thursday, November 28th for this worthwhile evening's entertainment.

Prize Drawing Concert, Monday

The prize drawing for the Grand Prize of $100 War Savings Certificate and for the Merchants' Special Prizes offered during Shopping Week, will be held at a concert to take place at the Opera House on Monday evening next, November 18th.

A splendid program has been arranged, to include a quiz contest and a radio play, in addition to vocal and instrumental selections by leading local artistes.

There will be a small charge of 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children. The proceeds of the concert are to be given to the Red Cross.

No Government Aid for Road to Highway

No Government help will be given this year toward the graveling of the road east to the highway, was indicated in a reply from the Highway Maintenance Department read at the meeting of Mountain View Municipal Council at Olds on Saturday. The letter stated that as no provision had been made in the estimates, nothing could be done this year.

Last November a delegation from the Mountain View Council interviewed the Minister of Public Works (Mr. Fallow) with regard to the matter and received a promise from the minister that his government would assist financially in graveling the road. As nothing had been done, a reminder forwarded to the above department had elicited the above reply.

Councillors Rupp and Houlton were appointed delegates to the municipal convention to be held in Calgary on November 21st and 22nd.

A letter was read from the Department of Public Health, stating that the first quarter of the appropriation to the Rosebud Health District be paid forthwith. The first quarterly payment amounts to $256.65.

A number of applications for tax consolidation were approved and accounts and pay sheets were also passed.

Medal Contest

A medal contest will be staged under auspices of the W.C.T.U. at the Mountain View Community Hall on Saturday, November 23rd at 8 p.m. After the contest there will be a short entertainment and refreshments will be served. An offering will be taken. Everyone invited.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

A broad investigation of alleged "price chiselling" on materials for the United States defence construction program is announced.

Australia's population last June was 7,031,000, an increase of 38,853 since the beginning of the year, according to statistics released.

The United States navy has moved to bolster its auxiliary fleet by taking over the entire Panama Pacific line fleet of five 8,300-ton combination freight-passenger vessels.

Lord Woolton, British minister of food, in a cable to Americans made public by Bundles for Britain, Inc., appealed for more mobile kitchens rather than food donations.

The foreign exchange control board announced that special border permits will be issued for the convenience of residents of Canada who make frequent trips to the United States.

Mussolini approved a measure by which the government would take over munitions factories. Another measure prohibits the use of foreign words in letterheads or advertisements.

Air Minister Arthur Fadden revealed that Australia's proposed expenditure on the Empire air training scheme in Canada would be £11,500,000 ($40,812,062 out of the total of £55,000,000 to March, 1943).

The death of John Baldwin Beresford, 52, former director of the ministry of information intelligence department, while on duty as a Home Guard in an air raid on London, was announced.

Highways construction as a means of employing men demobilized at the end of the war was suggested by Hon. T. B. McQuestion, Ontario minister of highways, before the convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association.

War Pictures

Published In The Thick Of The War On Britain

An issue of the Illustrated London News, published in the thick of the air war on Britain, carried war pictures and colored photographs of the King. Backing a page of air-raid pictures, an article on swallows and swifts is given a full page. The piece is beautifully written. It begins: "A great joy during the gorgeous weather which prevails at the time I am writing is to watch the swallows and swifts careering like flights of arrows across the sky." Not forgetting the war planes, the British could pause to enjoy the flight of birds—This Week Magazine.

Chukar Partridge

Would Appear To Thrive Well On Weed Seeds

Analysis of the food found in the crops of a couple of Chukar partridges which were shot illegally in Saskatchewan, goes to prove that besides being a good game bird, the Chukar is the farmer's friend.

In one bird there was found 12 grasshoppers, and in the other eight grasshoppers. The balance of the food consisted of about 98 per cent. caragana seed and two per cent. ball mustard seed, with just a sprinkling of Russian thistle.

There was not a kernel of commercial grain in either crop, which indicates that the birds would eke out a living wherever they happened to be and would not seek out the grain fields as other birds do.

The birds should thrive in this country where they will have no difficulty in getting supplies of winter feed, in view of their readiness to eat any food which happens to be available.

A Memorial

Lone Shrine Stands Among Ruins In "No Man's Land"

Down in no man's land of East London in a small street called Alice Street. It is a scene of stark desolation, of demolished houses, crumbling walls, twisted beams, battered and beaten by German bombers.

The front wall of one house, in the centre of a row of 20, remains standing almost like a weather-beaten sentinel among the ruins. On it is a small shrine, a memorial to "the men of Alice Street who fell in the Great War."

It is a simple, home-made memorial, a wooden plaque bearing the roughly carved names of nine men of Alice Street, who lost their lives 25 years ago in a vain effort to make Alice Street safe for their children.

Above the plaque is a glass-enclosed receptacle for flowers and under it is the motto "Give us Peace in Our Time, Oh Lord."

In Alice Street itself and for some distance in all directions every pane of glass has been shattered except the glass in the shrine. It escaped the fury of the Nazi bombs. It was not even cracked.

Alice Street may be a shambles but its rough, crude shrine to nine brave men still stands, a pathetic motto of a hope now vanished like the houses that lined the streets.

Alice Street will be rebuilt some day when the East End of London ceases to be no man's land.

U.S. Manufacturers To Provide Coats For British Women And Children

A committee of leading United States coat and suit manufacturers has been formed to provide 100,000 winter overcoats for British women and children it was announced in New York by the British War Relief Society.

The manufacturers have arranged to obtain donations of heavy cloth from woollen mills and have asked David Dubinsky, president of the Amalgamated Cloth Workers' Union, to authorize their own workers to donate time to cut and make coats, using the machinery of the manufacturers.

Ancient Manuscripts

Egypt's priceless literary treasures, more than 180,000 manuscripts and ancient tomes, have been made safe from air raids in a desert hill cave of secret location. Some time ago, the treasures of Tut-Ankh-Amen and other Pharaohs were buried deep in the stone vaults of the Cairo museum.

IT COULD HAVE BEEN AVOIDED

Most common of all railway crossing accidents, pictured above, in this series of actual fatal occurrences on the prairies, is that in which the driver of an automobile obviously sees the train but believes he can beat it to the crossing. Here is shown a totally reckless driver who has dashed past the stop sign at the roadside in a desperate attempt to clear the track in front of a speeding train. The engineer, who has signalled for the crossing and who had every right to believe that road traffic would stop, has seen the car's dash and has applied the brakes, but it is too late. Death will not be cheated this time. The result of this wild driving will be shown in the next illustration in this series.

A HEALTH DIET

Do you eat enough vegetables? Valuable as they are in minerals and vitamins, vegetables must be included in the things we eat. So states an article in the current issue of the magazine "Health," prepared by the nutrition committee of the Health League of Canada.

Not all vegetables are equally valuable from a nutritive point of view, the article points out. Some vegetables supply iron, others do not. We get Vitamin A from one kind of vegetable and vitamin C from another.

Cabbage, spinach and carrots are good sources of vitamin A, which is necessary to maintain normal vision and to prevent disease. Green cabbage is much richer in vitamin A than white cabbage. The outer leaves of cabbage are more valuable than the inner heart.

Without vegetables and fruit, people would be deprived of the important vitamin C, which safeguards us against scurvy. Tomatoes, cabbage, turnips and potatoes are chief sources of this vitamin. Orange juice and tomato juice also are good.

Cabbage and green leaved vegetables are valuable in their iron content, needed to prevent anaemia. Dried beans are also good iron producers. At least two vegetables should be served every day.

Among the necessary body materials are: proteins, certain minerals and vitamins. Proteins may be obtained from many sources, but not all are of equal value as body building material. Those obtained from meat and vegetables are superior to those we get from grain, vegetables and nuts, for example. Meat and fish, therefore, are advisable in our regular diet.

The average man needs 70 grams of proteins a day. Experts agree that a large portion of these should be drawn from milk, cheese, eggs and meat or fish. The following table shows the quantity derivable from each:

3 glasses of milk.....	18 grams
1 one-inch cube of cheese	6 grams
1 egg	6 grams
1 normal slice beef.....	8 grams

Total

The other 32 grams will be obtained from other of our daily foods.

In Praise Of Churchill

He Is The World's Most Commanding Figure

... And animating and guiding the mighty effort an unmatched Prime Minister, Winston Churchill, not Hitler, is to-day the world's most commanding figure—in the phrase of Tennyson, "the centre of a world's desire." The long reproach that democracy cannot produce the dynamic leader is gone.

I am convinced that this man, who gathers in his person so many of the great traditions of the British race, who steadily from the moment of his advent as Premier has radiated the conviction expressed by Pitt in the words: "England will save herself by her exertions, and Europe by her example," will do for Europe and the world what Pitt did in the days of Napoleon—Prof. W. S. Osborne in the Winnipeg Free Press.

On the morning of that day he walked around his bedraggled do-mesne before going to the city. He had grown attached to Royall House, he discovered, and almost wished he could take it with him. It was ugly and dreary and depressing. Even the vegetable garden seemed decayed. Pale ghosts of cabbages drooped like aged and mourning men amid the skeleton stalks of their departed fellows.

Across the desolation came the gardener, his shoulders protected from the drizzle by a sack.

"I've got a load of stuff to fill the pit," he said. "Came yesterday."

The pit was an eyesore and had been for thirty years. It was a deep depression at the edge of the kitchen garden and Mr. Ellenbury had cried many dreams upon it. An ornamental pond, surrounded by banked rhododendrons. A swimming pool with a white-tiled bed and marble seats, where, hidden from the vulgar eye by trellised roses, a bather might sit and bask in the sun. Now it was the end of dreams—a pit to be filled. He stood on the edge of it. An unlovely hole in the ground, the bottom covered with water, the rusty corner of a petrol tin showing just above the surface.

By the side was a heap of rubbish, aged bricks and portions of brick, sand gravel, sheer asphalt emptyings.

"I will fill it in I have promised myself that exercise," said Mr. Ellenbury, forgetting for the moment that by to-morrow he would be filling in nothing more substantial than time.

The slumy hole held his eyes. If he could put Harlow there and see his big white face staring up from the mud that would be a good filling!

He felt his face and neck go red, his limbs tingling. Presently he tore himself away and walked back to the house. The car that Ratat had hired for him was waiting—the driver bade him a civil good morning and said the weather was the worst he had ever known.

Mr. Ellenbury went in to breakfast without replying. The sight of the car was suggestive.

There was a garage known to Mr. Ellenbury where a car could be hired and no inconvenient questions asked. Stated more clearly, there are many people in London engaged in peculiar professions, to whom money was not an important consideration. They could not buy loyalty, but they were willing to pay for discretion.

Nova's Garage had a tariff that was considerably higher than any other, but the extra cost was money well spent. For when the police came to Nova's to learn who was the foreign-looking gentleman who had driven away from a West End jeweller's with the diamond ring he had bought and the row of pearls that had disappeared with him, Nova's were blandly ignorant. Nor could they recognize the lady who had driven the rich Bradford merchant to Marlow and left him drugged and penniless in the long grass of the meadows.

In the afternoon the car came; the chauffeur was a burly man with a black mustache who chewed gum and had no interest in anybody's business but his own.

In this Mr. Ellenbury drove to the bank, taking his two suitcases, and went into the manager's room and checked the cable advices.

"Immense!" said the manager soberly. He referred to the total. "And more to come, I suppose? It is so big that it almost breaks loose from the standards."

"Standards?"

Mr. Ellenbury did not know what he was talking about.

"Right and wrong * * * like taking a foot rule to measure St. Paul's."

Ellenbury, something of a dilettante, could not resist the challenge.

"Moral conduct isn't a matter of arithmetic, but a matter of proportion. You can't measure it with a yardstick, but by its angle. Ten degrees out of the perpendicular is as much a fault in a gatepost as in the leaning Tower of Pisa. * * * I make this American total a hundred and twelve thousand."

"And ten," added the manager. "The exchange is against us."

Mr. Ellenbury made five bundles of the notes and fitted them into the suitcase.

"Now we will take the South American remittances," said the manager, painfully patient, a sigh in his every sentence, disapproval in his every penholder. "I suppose you're right, but it does seem to me that a man's offense against society is in inverse ratio to the amount of money he pockets."

"Pouches!" murmured Mr. Ellenbury in protest.

"Pockets," then. When you reach the million mark you've got to a point beyond the comprehension of a jury. They look at the man and they look at the money, and they say 'not guilty' automatically. There ought to be a new set of laws dealing with property starting with penalties for pinching a million, and working up to the place where you can indict a government for wasting nine figures. And the jury should be made up of accountants and novelists, who've never seen real money, but think in millions. $7,900 I make it."

Mr. Ellenbury performed a rapid calculation, consulting the little ready reckoner which bank clerks employ to find exchange values.

"Right," he said. "You have queerly perverted principles, my friend. Whether a man steal 10 cents or $5,000,000—"

"Bank of Yokohama"—the manager sorted his papers. "The yen is at 18.85-16d., and it only seems yesterday that it was on the twenty-four mark. Curious! Way down in the bowels of the earth a ledge of rocks slips over, a superheated packet of steam blows up, and the effect on the money market is disastrous! There is a lot of earthquake in Harlow; he has got into the Acts of God class. I'm giving you dollars for this—U.S. dollars."

"Quite O.K.," said Mr. Ellenbury, checking the bundles that were handed to him.

It was growing dark when he carried out his suitcases and placed them inside the car. They were very heavy. It was strange how heavy paper money could be—and how bulky.

He drove to his office in Theobald's Road and was glad that many years before, when offered the choice between a small suite on the ground floor and a larger one on the first floor, he had chosen the former.

He had sent his clerk home early. It was a Friday, and the man had been given a fortnight's holiday and had had his salary in advance. Opening the outer door with his key, he tugged the two suitcases into his private room. Here was a brand new trunk and a passport. A few weeks before Harlow had ordered him to procure a passport for a "Mr. Jackson," whose other name was Ingle. Ellenbury had a distaste for the petty frauds of life, but as usual he had obeyed and duplicated the offense by applying for a second passport, forwarding a photograph of himself taken 20 years before and using a name which had not the faintest resemblance to his own.

He sat down with the two bulging grips before him and with a feeling of growing unease. Not that his conscience was troubling him. The bedridden Mrs. Ellenbury never once entered his mind; the injustice he was doing to his employer, if it occurred to him at all, was a relief to his distress.

The weight and the bulk of paper money.

The customs officials would search his suitcase at Calais or Havre, and the money would attract attention. He might put it at the bottom of the trunk and register it through. But the thefts of baggage on the French railways were notoriously frequent. He might, of course, travel by the Simplon Express or by the Blue Train—hand baggage was subject to a perfunctory examination on the train, and if he were bound for Monte Carlo the carriage of such wealth might be regarded as an act of madness by the customs officials and excite no other comment.

But both the Simplon and the Riviera Express are booked up at this season of the year, and a compartment could not be secured by any influence.

There remained only one alternative. To carry half the money in his trunk, distribute as much as he could amongst his pockets, and post the rest to himself at various hotels throughout France and Spain. And this would be a long and tedious job. He went into the outer office and brought back a packet of stout envelopes. He must not register them—these Latin post offices made the collection of a registered letter a fussy business.

CHAPTER XXIII.

With a Bradshaw by his side, he began his task. He exhausted the envelopes and went in search of another packet, but could find none of the requisite stoutness. Extinguishing the lights, he went out to a neighboring store, replenished his stock and came back. Halfway through the second packet and with the writing table piled with bulging envelopes, he was writing:

Hotel Reina Christina,

when there was a tap on the green baize door and he nearly screamed with fright.

Two grave eyes were watching him through the oval of glass that gave a view into the office. Leaping to his feet, his teeth set in a grin of fear, he dragged open the door.

Count Ciano Makes Remarkable Statement About The Axis Powers

If someone should offer a prize for the most humorous remark of the month, we would suggest as the recipient Count Ciano of Italy. In his address before the diplomats and journalists assembled to hear the details of the German-Italian-Japanese pact, the count delivered an address, in which he made this startling remark:

"These three powers have no intention of challenging or threatening anyone."

A frequent rejoinder when anyone sets forth a palpably false idea is: "Do you think I was born yesterday?" Count Ciano, if he really meant to be accepted seriously, must assume that practically everyone in the world came into being the day before he made that remark. The count, of course, knows that people have memories, so perhaps he was striving to show that the three totalitarian powers have grown contrite and have reformed, that while attempting to establish a new order in the world they have decided to accept the old order of Christian morality. Maybe he meant to put that idea across. He still deserves the prize for the most humorous remark of the month. Buffalo Courier-Express.

FRIENDS

What is a Friend? I will tell you. It is a person with whom you dare to be yourself. Frank Crane.

Real friendship is a slow grower, and never thrives unless engrafted upon a stock of known and reciprocal merit.—Lord Chesterfield.

There are no greater miracles known to earth than perfection and an unbroken friendship.—Mary Baker Eddy.

There can never be deep peace between two spirits, never mutual respect, until, in their dialogue, each stands for the whole world. Emerson.

When friendship is settled, you must trust; before it is formed, you must pass judgment.—Seneca.

A man that hath friends must show himself friendly; and there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother.—Proverbs 18:24.

Group Hospitalization

Properly Handled, Provides Benefits To Greater Number Of People

Dr. George F. Stevens, of Montreal, president of the Canadian Hospital Council, said that group hospitalization schemes, properly handled, provided benefits to many more people than those immediately concerned with hospitalization. He addressed a session of the Saskatchewan Hospital Association at Regina.

In addition to the relief of financial stress on patients, hospitals and doctors, the public also benefited, he stated. Payment of accounts by those participating in hospital schemes reduced the charity load which the public ordinarily bore through taxation.

A resolution passed by the Hospital Association approved the establishment of a group hospitalization pool for the dependents of enlisted men. It suggested that the scheme be operated by the Federal Government and that the Government should make deductions from dependents' allowances to establish a fund for paying hospital bills.

A. P. Donnelly, of Saskatoon, was elected president of the association for the next year.

France Still Lives

Gen. De Gaulle Is Confident Cause Is Not Lost

General Charles de Gaulle's first attempt to rally France's colonies to his anti-Nazi, anti-Vichy standard ended in failure at Dakar. His second, in the Cameroons, has succeeded without opposition. He was welcomed there as a comrade-in-arms by the governor-general.

What lies ahead for De Gaulle is obscure. But the landing at Duala was made memorable by other than its status as a significant chapter of Free France's fight against Hitler. De Gaulle made it so by his response to the official welcome.

"Cameroon has set a magnificent example already, followed by a number of colonies, and others will follow. I cite Hitler's words in 'Mein Kampf' that a people may be beaten but when a people and their leaders accept defeat then they are forever lost. On the contrary, if a handful of men do not accept defeat then everything is to be hoped for."

The quotation from Hitler was apt; the interpretation was an inspiration. De Gaulle was the voice of France speaking—the France of liberty, equality and fraternity, opposing the subjugated France of Adolf Hitler.

Warning To Democracies

After the next victorious war, we must strike the conquered foe so mercilessly that his spirit and the spirit of his children will be crushed for generations. "No conquered foe must ever again dare to look a German in the face as an equal. He must recognize him as an overlord."—Erich Von Ludendorff.

The only way a Nazi pilot can get real coffee (not ersatz) is to be shot down. Then the British give it to him.

The World of Wheat

By H. G. L. STRANGE

Director, "The Crop Testing Plan."

It seems fitting indeed that Great Britain and the Greeks should be standing side by side defending Democracy against a common enemy.

Democracy, or those principles of freedom and liberty which insist that the individual citizen is superior to the State, and shall not be merely the pawn of a monarch or of a dictator, was first invented by Solon the Greek in the year 594 B.C. and was actually put into practice as a system of Government in Athens - with a deliberative assembly which sat continuously throughout the year to design laws and to govern the country - in 503 B.C.

This system of Democracy was eventually lost by the Greeks, but the English won it back for the common people when King John was obliged to sign the great Magna Carta at Runnymede on June 15th, 1215.

Today these dearly won rights and liberties are again in danger, and it seems more than a mere coincidence that the Greeks, who originally discovered democracy and put it practically to work, and the English who restored it to the world should be fighting side by side to maintain these precious rights of the individual; and fighting moreover on the very same Grecian soil and seas where Democracy was won originally by the Greeks in 594 B.C., or 2,443 years ago.

Following factors have tended to raise prices: Australia's wheat crop for 1940 is 125 million bushels less than last year—Recent Chinese purchases of North American flour have been heavy—It is estimated that 13.5 percent or 107 million bushels of 1940 wheat crop will be fed to livestock in the U.S.

Following factors have tended to lower prices: Harvesting of corn has made good progress in the Balkan countries—Cultivation for winter crops in the U.K. is proceeding satisfactorily—Seeding of wheat is now well under way in India—New wheat crop prospects in the Argentine continue favorable.

Buy at Home and Help Build Didsbury

Does the person who buys out-of-town either through the mails or from canvassers ever realize some of the benefits to be had from patronizing the local dealer? Many who do buy out-of-town look at nothing but the initial investment they are called upon to make for the goods bought. It never occurs to them that money which has been earned in the town is being sent out to help develop some other community in place of their own. By keeping money circulating among the merchants locally, greater prosperity comes to the town as a whole. The retail business is a very important part of any community and any effort to curb the volume of trade passing through this channel will ultimately reflect back upon those who passed up their local store for out-of-town stores.

What War Savings Mean

War Savings actually mean intelligent management of one's own affairs in relation to the war effort. Saving alone is not enough - to have its maximum effectiveness it must be wisely directed savings. We must save on products and services which can be directly diverted to war purposes. Many things which are not luxuries in the usual sense of the word are luxuries now if we are to be honest and thorough in our determination to put first the winning of the war. For example, a dollar spent on imports, even of ordinary necessities, from non Empire countries, may be just one dollar less available for imports of war necessities from such countries. Dollars spent on products other than those wholly essential which require a large amount of skilled mechanical labor reduces the amount of labor available for the production of aeroplanes, tanks, motor transport, and other war essentials.

It is the stern responsibility of every Canadian to consider whether or not his spending hampers the effort to equip our soldiers, sailors and airmen with the best and most complete equipment. In other words, our private buying should not be competing with the Department of Munitions and Supply for products that involve foreign exchange or construction and mechanical labor.

War Saving Certificates provide a medium through which Canadians can systematically invest a part of current income in a storehouse of purchasing power to be used in later years. Much of the agony of the adjustment from wartime to peacetime pursuits of the nation will be avoided if our people have saved regularly while all are busy producing the sinews of war.

is it?

WHAT money? Why—the money in the banks! The money carefully put away by you and your neighbours in savings accounts. The money you could have spent today but wanted to keep safely against some future need. The businessman's money for use in his normal operations. There are more than 4,846,000 bank deposit accounts, savings and current. Within these two classes the great majority of deposits are small or of moderate amount. Q But you'd be wrong if you assumed from this, that the rest of the deposits are owned by the few! Quite the contrary! The railways, for instance, have deposits in the chartered banks—and that indirectly includes the whole population of the Dominion. The trade unions have deposits. Millions of policy-holders share in the ownership of insurance companies' deposits. Q And don't overlook the deposits of wheat pools; farm co-operatives; churches; municipalities and municipal hydro commissions, school districts; school children's penny bank savings deposited with the chartered banks; and commercial and mining corporations with very wide lists of shareholders, large and small, all over Canada. Truly, money on deposit in Canada's chartered banks is owned, in fact, by you and your fellow-Canadians.

In war, as in peace, Canada's Chartered Banks maintain, uninterrupted, their useful services — safeguarding depositors' funds; facilitating the nation's business — looking forward to peace with freedom as the only sure basis of enduring prosperity.

Notes From the West

A parcel of goods was dispatched to Private T. Dobson in England last Saturday by friends in the district.

Mr and Mrs. Alex Hogg, Colin Hogg and Miss Jean Lowrie were Calgary visitors on Thursday.

Corporal E. Lowrie stationed at Camrose, spent the weekend leave at his home in the Inverness district.

Miss Betty Watt of Calgary, who has been a guest of Miss Isobel Lowrie at Inverness since Tuesday last, spent Sunday at the A. L. Hogg home, returning to Calgary that evening. The Misses Isobel and Edith Lowrie were also guests.

Mrs. D. Evans entertained at supper on Saturday evening, it being Mrs. Evans' and Mrs. Otto Krebs' birthday. After a delicious supper the evening was spent in cards and honors went to Mrs. A. L. Hogg and Mr. Percy Hoggood. Those present were Mr and Mrs. D. Evans; Mr. and Mrs. O. Krebs; Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Hogg; Mr. and Mrs. E. Parker; Mr. and Mrs. P. Hoggood and Maxine.

Rugby Notes

The November meeting of the W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Landeen. A rather stormy afternoon, perhaps accounted for the small attendance. It was arranged to hold a quilting party at the home of Mrs. McNaughton, on Monday, November 18. It was unanimously decided that instead of the usual Gift Exchange which is always held at the December meeting. All members be asked to put in 25c for the Red Cross. Please do not forget this. Next month we meet at the home of Mrs. A. Krebs.

Westcott Notes.

Westcott Women's Institute met with Mrs. John Spillman on Thursday of last week, with ten members and one visitor present. The meeting opened with 'O Canada' and a lengthy business meeting followed. Final arrangements were made for the bazaar, which is being held on November 15th, at the Westcott school at 8 o'clock sharp. A good program is being arranged.

Mrs. A. Thompson took up the topic of "Legislation" and gave a splendid paper comparing various governments of different countries.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ed. Klinck, when a kitchen shower in honor of a bride-to-be, Miss Hazel Vogel, will be held. The meeting closed with "God Save The King", and lunch was served.

Regarding Complaints re. Soldiers' Mail

In dealing with complaints that soldiers overseas do not receive their parcels of cigarettes, etc., Mr. W. J. Turnbull, director of public relations for the Post Office Department, has this to say:

"Complaints have been made in connection with tobacco parcels for troops overseas. It has been suggested that the parcels are in some cases not reaching the addressee and the fault is laid at the door of the Post Office or of the Tobacco Company which had accepted the order. In this connection I might explain that a special system has been placed in effect whereby the Tobacco Companies and this Department co-operate in ensuring safe transmission of such parcels. Under the new arrangements a Post Office official 'bags' the tobacco parcels at the despatching office of the Company after the parcels are carefully numbered to facilitate recording. Each and every one of these parcels is subsequently checked during course of handling at the Base Post Office for onward transmission. Further check is made on arrival in England to ensure safe delivery. Despite these precautions delay on occasions is inevitable, due to any of the following: incorrect addressing, change of address after parcel has been mailed, mail boat waiting for convoy, loss of parcels through sinking by enemy action of ships carrying the mails."

Why the Red Cross is in urgent need of funds

Here are a few tasks the Canadian Red Cross must tackle at once:

- 1 At the request of the British Red Cross, it has undertaken to provide 10,000 parcels of food each week from Canada for British prisoners of war in Germany. Canadians can thus help to lessen the strain on Britain's food supplies.
- 2 The Canadian Red Cross will provide, equip and co-operate with the Department of National Defence in maintaining a number of convalescent hospitals in various parts of Canada for use by Canadian soldiers, here and from overseas, who are sick or wounded.
- 3 The Canadian Red Cross will help to supply clothing and other necessities to the more than 100,000 evacuee children in Britain, and the 100,000 refugees from invaded countries who have sought shelter under the Union Jack. Many articles of relief clothing have been supplied, but another half million articles will be needed from Canadian Red Cross workrooms.
- 4 The Canadian Red Cross is sending an increasing flow of supplies for the alleviation of civilian suffering caused by enemy bombing of Britain.
- 5 As Canada's own armed forces grow, on land, on sea and in the air, the need for Red Cross services increases.
- 6 The Red Cross must be ready and fully equipped to meet any emergency at the moment it arises.

These are tasks you must not leave undone. Support the Red Cross with all your heart.

Trickery, Treachery, Terrorism

By this time the causes of the war in which we are presently engaged and the issues involved should be reasonably well clarified, sufficiently to enable us to determine why we are fighting, what the objective is and the degree of intensity necessary to ensure ultimate victory.

Not much time nor space need be devoted to the causes of the greatest and most-widely destructive conflict that the world has ever known. A madman has run amok in Europe, and after dazzling his own people with specious promises that they are to become the dominant entity in a "new world order," has set out to conquer the world. It was a pre-determined program. By tricks, treachery and terrorism, he first enslaved his own people who, at first, willingly surrendered their liberties on the false promise that by so doing they should bend others to their bidding. This accomplished, the German people, at Hitler's behest, by trickery, treachery and terrorism, backed by the machine gun and the bomb, have succeeded in over-running the greater part of continental Europe and have enslaved millions of liberty-loving people.

The tide was running strongly in Hitler's favor and it appeared as if his ultimate objective—world domination—might be within his grasp, until he made his abortive attempt to enslave the British people by the direct route of invasion of British soil. Hitler realizes that his dream of world or even of partial world domination is now impossible until Britain has been routed. He has turned aside for the time being and is attempting to achieve this objective in other directions and indirectly, again by the employment of those weapons of which he has proved himself a past master—trickery, treachery and terrorism.

A Simple Issue

As for the issues in this gigantic conflict, they can be reduced to a single simple statement. It is this: Is the world to be allowed to revert to the savagery and barbarism of the dark ages or, are the peoples of the world to be allowed to continue to emerge into the broad light of a beneficent, all-embracing civilization, towards which they have been struggling upward and onward for a thousand years?

If the doctrine of Nazism is to be allowed universal sway, it simply means that the world is to be engulfed in all the brutalities and tyrannies that held sway throughout the dark ages of history. It means the loss of all personal liberties for the rank and file of humanity. It will be left to arrogant dictators to say what shall be worshipped, how and when; what views may be expressed on all or any subjects and by whom and when; what shall be listened to and what shall not be heard. Farmers will be told what to produce and how much of it. Business men will be told what they may sell and people what they may buy. Women will be told whom they may marry and how many children they shall bear. People will even be told what they may eat and what they may not eat. Education will be emasculated and opportunity for the individual abrogated.

And woe betide the individual who offends the slavish code in which he will become enmeshed. A murmur against his hard lot will spell torture and imprisonment. Death will lurk around the corner for him who dares to breathe a word against his despotic masters. It will be too late to kick against the pricks. All human desires for betterment, for enlightenment, for spiritual nourishment will be sternly suppressed and ground to dust beneath the iron heel of Nazism.

To The Finish

These are the facts which have to be faced. They must be recognized as irrefutable and must be met squarely, if civilization is not to be overwhelmed and the world plunged into a black night which might last a thousand years. Great Britain has recognized the issue fully and is now waging a gallant fight against these forces of darkness. Fortunately Canada is now awakening to a realization of the seriousness of the struggle and the test to which she is being subjected. There are growing signs that the United States is becoming more and more keenly aware of the peril which is threatening from all sides.

The day of wishful thinking is long past. Hitler is implementing his promise to wage an "all out" war. "The end justifies the means" is his doctrine. As John W. Daboe in an admirable contribution to the radio series "Let's Face the Facts" said: "Hitler and Mussolini, in their ideas personify human nature at its most tigerish level. They cannot afford to leave the light of human freedom shining anywhere in the world. For them at least the world cannot continue half free and half slave. Therefore they wage war, world wide in its purpose; and by a law of iron necessity this war must go on until it destroys every vestige of freedom in the world, or the dictatorships are themselves consumed in the fires which they have ignited."

With such a desperate issue facing them, there is only one thing facing the yet unconquered democracies, and that is to put everything they possess into the fight and to wage it to a finish.

Before the war, scientists were exploding bombs in the ocean near Bermuda, for the peaceful purpose of detecting nature of rock formations in the depths.

Board Bill For Graf Spee Crew
Reaching Large Figures

Argentina has marked up a 1,000,000-peso board bill (about $327,500) against the Nazi government for entertaining since last December 1,000 or more crewmen of the scuttled pocket battleship, Admiral Graf Spee.

Despite this hospitality, informed sources said 19 officers and 69 sailors have escaped from internment in Argentina, apparently in attempts to reach Germany.

Attempted and successful escapes, raising necessity for more guards and costly searches, have added to the expense Argentina, under the terms of international law, must bear until the end of the war.

The Nazi seamen consumed huge stocks of Argentina foods after weeks of cruising on limited supplies, so Argentina officials first appropriated 500,400 pesos to meet costs of maintaining the crew.

Under The Hague convention, Germany is responsible for these costs and she must settle with Argentina when the war is done.

Argentina attempted to lighten the burden of its uninvited guests by spreading the sailors through interior provinces in small groups, hoping the Nazis would find work and become self-supporting. A lack of suitable jobs and the strong temptation to escape defeated the plan.

FOR GAY INDOOR GARDEN
START FLOWERING BULBS

Pot Now for All-Winter Bloom

Autumn days are here saying it's time to start flowering bulbs if you'd have a truly lovely indoor garden this winter.

And your window sills will be lovely, abloom from fall to spring, if you choose bulbs with different blooming periods, follow a few pointers on their planting and care.

The fragrant hyacinth, the trailing pink-flowered oxalis in our picture bloom in mid-winter. But much earlier you may have autumn crocus and tender narcissus and later there are amaryllis, lilies-of-the-valley.

To raise most bulbs successfully, you have only to give them good drainage and, during their rooting season, cool moist darkness. For drainage, put cinders or pebbles in the bottom of the pot as our diagram shows. Though the hyacinth prefers a garden pit for its rooting time, the other bulbs we've named root nicely indoors.

You can grow bulbs entirely with water too, as well as such graceful plants as the Chinese evergreen.

Our 32-page booklet gives complete directions for growing favorite bulbs, vines, ferns, flowering and foliage plants. Tells how to grow bulbs, plants in water; gives instructions for window-box and bracket plants. Has pointers for watering, re-potting, pests.

The Spirit In Britain

German Brutalities Result In Stiffening The Morale

Perhaps the following may serve to illustrate the spirit in which those who have so terribly suffered in recent air raids take their sufferings. I was visiting a large hospital in which many air raid casualties from Southeast London have been received. I was with a father, a man about 40, whose child had just died. Another, seriously injured, was also in the hospital. While I was with him he received the news that his wife and remaining three children were also dead. When, a little later, before I left him, I asked what he was going to do, this was his reply—"Do? Why, join up to-morrow"—he meant it. I do not think, Sir, that this is an isolated case, but is rather typical of the spirit which the German brutalities are arousing, increasingly, in all classes of the community.—Bishop Golding-Bird in the London Times.

Array Of Facts Are Presented To Show Why Britain Will Win War

By Arthur Wauters
(Famous Belgian Statesman and Writer)

Hitler's military victories achieved, for a time, a double psychological result. The German people were filled with faith in a magician who was re-shaping Europe, as though invested with a mysterious power. On the other hand, some superficial neutral onlookers began to be convinced of the invincibility of Nazi Germany.

The Allies, perhaps unwittingly, contributed to establishing this childish belief by complacent descriptions of the war methods of the German armies in the first period of the war. They did it, of course, with the praiseworthy object of stimulating the will of resistance and readiness of sacrifice of the democratic masses.

The psychological effect of the German successes has been increasing in geometrical progression. Hitler has kept his promises of victory with mathematical precision. He had announced that he would be in Paris on June 15. He was there.

But it may be doubted whether the process of collective bewitchment will have a lasting effect. Hitler announced that he would be in London on August 15. He failed to keep the appointment.

He himself thus furnished the proof of the vanity of some of his boasts. Those who had been intoxicated by German propaganda are baffled. They are beginning to make historical comparisons. There is no need to go back very far in time. Kaiser Wilhelm's Germany collapsed almost immediately after achieving indisputable military triumphs.

The Fuehrer's thirst for conquest is now encountering some obstacles. The time for easy successes is past.

In the neutral country which I left for London a month ago, the most absurd stories found credence in defiance of all human intelligence. It was whispered that Britain's fate would be sealed within three weeks or that 45 millions of starving and terrorized Britons were spending their lives queuing up for a problematic crust of bread in the daytime, and with collective lamentation in the underground shelters at night. Britain, it was said, was no more than a heap of ruins. The electric power stations were destroyed, the largest city in the world was plunged in darkness. Transport was paralyzed. A desperate people was in revolt against its leaders. The Empire was collapsing.

I am writing these lines in London where the roar of the greatest air battles in history reaches our ears. The German planes are being brought down by the magnificent pilots of the Royal Air Force at the rate of five to one and sometimes of one a minute. The power of the Empire is unimpaired. In spite of the self-styled German "blockade," millions of tons of merchandise reach British ports week after week.

The shops are overflowing with goods. There is a certain amount of rationing, but it does not interfere with anybody's food supply, nor does it diminish any workman's productive capacity. Astonishing quantities of produce are accessible to all: coffee, oranges, bananas, grape fruit, tropical nuts, pepper, tobacco, olives, and what not.

There is something disconcerting about the calm and coolness of this great people. It is due neither to indifference nor to passivity. With it the sense of national co-operation reaches a prodigious degree. Each one is mobilized either organically or morally. Each is doing his work with orderliness, calm and discipline. There is neither haste, nor precipitation, nor panic. Everyone applies rules strictly and encourages everyone else to do likewise. Vigilance never relaxes. Britain is not invaded, but everyone behaves as though invasion might come at any moment. This people will in no circumstances be taken by surprise. A sporting people, the British are counting the blows and taking stock impartially of their reverses and failings, not to be disheartened by them, but to correct them. Nothing is left to chance or to improvisation.

Britain gives the impression of a powerful up-to-date machine, whose flawless, well-oiled march proceeds noiselessly and without a hitch. Everyone knows what he has to do. And he, or she, will do it at the right time. There is complete, trusting and eager co-operation between the public and the authorities. German propaganda will not change this nor diminish in the least the calm and self-conscious force of this great free people. It is a significant fact that, in spite of ephemeral triumphs, the German people need to be drugged by false news. In Britain German communiques are published daily in full. Anyone can listen freely to Nazi broadcasts, if he happens to want to do so.

The democratic liberties are fully respected. The Press comments on Government action with a surprising frankness. Parliament, whose powers are supreme, continues to sit whenever there is business to transact. These things are, to my mind, one of the essential guarantees of Britain's coming victory.

The officially inspired optimism of the countries living under a system of censorship lulls the fighting spirit of the citizens to sleep. A flood of reassuring but often unfounded statements act like chloroform upon them.

The British people are conscious of the fact that they have never been invaded for the last 900 years. They are not oblivious to the unsuccessful attempts made successively by Philip II, Louis XIV. and by Napoleon. They know that 200 or 350 ships would be needed to land five divisions. They know that they will never be betrayed by that ally which always keeps faith with them: the sea. They know that their ships are sailing the seven seas and using thousands of ports all the world over, whereas the German and Italian mercantile fleets are confined to coastal traffic in the Baltic and the Adriatic.

They know that in defiance of the furious attacks of the German Luftwaffe, the Royal Air Force is daily delivering its blows on Germany, on Turin, on Milan, on Libya, wherever it cares to strike. They also know that the United States is on their side. They realize that those who were unable to prevent the heroic re-embarkation of Dunkirk are now faced with the incomparably more formidable task of attempting the same operation in the opposite direction. They know that the whole Empire, without exception, constitutes one solid rock. Nor do they forget that two-thirds of the peoples subjected by Germany are not Germans at all, and that the terrible fire of vengeance which is now smouldering in the hearts of the oppressed nations will burst into flame, at the right moment.

As a citizen of an indomitable nation, I know that, in spite of professional traitors and place-seekers, the whole of Belgium constitutes a column in the service of democracy and liberty. The beloved spirits of Cardinal Merlier, of Burgomaster Max, of King Albert, of the heroic workers who were deported for refusing to work for the Germans, accompany us in our effort and inspire us with hope. Britain and with her the permanent values of mankind will triumph.

Bombed Chickens

Mrs. Winston Churchill Finds Out About A New Dish

London's newest dish is bombed chicken. Mrs. Winston Churchill, wife of the prime minister, found out about it when she toured damaged areas in her husband's constituency.

She stopped at a school where 150 homeless were staying and asked what they were having for lunch. "Bombed chicken," the cook replied, explaining that all the birds were air-raid casualties.

Canadian Poultry

South Africa Places Order For Record Of Performance Stock

An order for Canadian Record of Performance poultry breeding stock has just been received from South Africa. The order is for two cockerels and six pullets. The prices paid are considered very satisfactory, being $25 each for the cockerels and $15 each for the pullets, f.o.b. point of shipment.

This order follows negotiations carried on by the Production Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture and follows several similar orders received in the last two years from British Guiana and Trinidad.

The fame of Canadian Record of Performance poultry has during the past few years, spread to several countries and it is recognized that under the system of breeding, poultry for greatly increased egg production and more suitable market type from valuable sources of foundation breeding stock have been established in all provinces of Canada.

The Director of Agriculture for British Guiana visited Ottawa recently and said he was greatly pleased in regard to the quality and egg production of several pens of Canadian R.O.P. breeding stock which had been shipped to the Department of Agriculture in British Guiana in the last two years. He reported that the birds had averaged 75 per cent. production since their arrival, even in the period that they were becoming acclimatized to tropical conditions, which are decidedly different from the Canadian climate in which they had been reared.

For years past, large numbers of Canadian R.O.P. breeding stock have been exported to the United States where commercial breeders and hatcherymen have long recognized its value in increasing the quality of their breeding flocks.

Internees Released

Some Civilian Aliens Interned In Canada Returned To Britain

From time to time, on orders of the British home office, civilian aliens interned in Canada at Great Britain's request, are being released and from an authoritative source it was understood that release of a new batch of civilian internees has been ordered.

As their cases are reviewed by the British home office, others probably will be released for return to England, where they were rounded up in a general round-up of enemy aliens, it was said.

It was emphasized that consideration of internees' cases does not include prisoners of war held in Canada for the United Kingdom. Nor do Canadian authorities have anything to do with granting the release.

For safety's sake the internees are merely held by Canadian authorities at Britain's request and were brought to the Dominion during the summer.

No figure was available on the number that have been released and returned to England or the number whose cases have been reviewed and now are awaiting embarkation orders.

British Coastal Vessels Perform Valuable Work Amid Hazards Of War

By "Tafrail"

(Famous British Naval Writer)

Of the 6,772 steamers and motorships of 100 tons and upwards registered under the British flag at the beginning of this war, no fewer than 4,247 are of less than 2,000 tons. Many of these are vessels of the coasting type, or those used in normal times for the shorter voyages to the continent.

Britain's larger ports specialize in the import and export of certain commodities carried by ocean-going steamers from and to the uttermost parts of the world. But the smaller coastal ports, used by small vessels, play a most important part in what may be termed the secondary distribution of Britain.

The coasting vessels collect cargoes at the greater ports and distribute them to many smaller ones. In Great Britain, where no part of the country is at any great distance from the sea, a large part of the population can be supplied through one port or another involving only a short haul by either rail or road. The coasting trade is entirely responsible for the low rates existing between port and port, and from and to towns within a considerable radius of those ports.

Even in time of war much British coasting trade still continues to run. One may instance the distribution of coal from the coal-producing districts, and of the huge quantities of food and other materials from the terminal ports where it is landed from overseas.

British coastwise trade lessens the burden on Britain's hardly-worked railways, and diminishes the inevitable delays of sorting and shunting. One comparatively small ship will carry the goods that could only be handled by a fleet of lorries using imported petrol. For the carriage of goods in bulk, and in spite of German aircraft, submarines and mines, the distribution by sea over a considerable area is still swifter and more economical than by road or rail.

The debt that Britain owes to the Merchant Navy and to those who man it is generally recognized. What is not so often realized is the great percentage of the British Merchant Navy that is made up in the little ships plying between the various smaller ports of Great Britain. Their names, like those of the tramps which ply further afield, are not known like those of the liners which carry passengers.

British coastwise seamen are now enduring the full fury of the German aircraft attacks on Channel and East Coast convoys. These are the men in the ships rounding what is popularly known as "Hell-Fire corner," who daily risk being bombed, machine-gunned or perhaps mined.

Protected by the Royal Navy and the Royal Air Force, they carry on unperturbed, taking the risks of war merely as additional hazards to the ordinary risks of peace. They were not trained to the use of weapons, or for the rigours of battle.

Skillful, rugged, unflinching, stolid and perhaps a little unimaginative, British coastwise seamen enjoy none of the glamour of publicity, or the glory of ribbons and gold-laced uniforms. One cannot distinguish them ashore, except perhaps by the silver badge with the naval crown and the letters M.N. (Merchant Navy), worn in their buttonholes. They are simple men carrying on their normal peace-time jobs in the midst of the frightfulness of the fiercest war that Britain has ever known.

They are also carrying on a great tradition, that of the Elizabethan seaman who sailed from every little port in England, when, in 1588, the Armada sailed up-Channel and Britain was threatened with invasion by the Duke of Parma's army in Flanders.

"God blew with His winds and they were scattered," was the pious legend used on the Armada medals bearing the effigy of Queen Elizabeth. England gave thanks to the Almighty for her deliverance; but no small deed of gratitude was also due to her seamen. Without them the country would have been lost.

It is the same to-day. Those thousands of British coastwise seamen carrying essential cargoes in their small ships from port to port would hate to be called heroes. Yet to describe them by any other term would err on the side of understatement.

The Little Man

Has Risen To Noble Stature In The Streets Of London

Two years ago the "little man" in England was cheering himself hoarse because he thought his leaders had brought him peace. Munich had just been signed, and the ordinary Englishman and Englishwoman were overjoyed. Now, they felt sure, the bombs would not crash through the roof of their cottage in the suburbs. Didn't Neville Chamberlain say it would be "peace for our time?" In London the little man and his wife hurried to Whitehall to shout their thanks; they stood in the pouring rain outside Buckingham Palace, waiting for their 68-year-old Prime Minister to show himself on the balcony with the King and Queen. The nightmare had ended and they were glad.

To-day the same little man in England clammers over the ruins of his house, shakes his fist at the sky, squares his jaw and fights on. He and his family have been overwhelmed with the terror he dreaded two years ago, but he is not ready to give in. He calls on his Government, instead, to shower Berlin with bombs. He insists that he can stand anything so long as Hitler and his Reich are destroyed. His heroism under fire is such that a legend is growing up about him. He has, indeed, risen to noble stature, in the slums of London, in the ruined streets of many other cities, in the work of fighting fires and succoring the injured while the bombers are overhead.

The little man in England has discovered, in the blinding flash of explosive and the glare of incendiary bombs, what England really means to him and to his children.

Principal Difference

Getting A Line On The Three Main European Dictators

Diego Rivera, the Mexican artist, says that the principal difference between the three main European dictatorships is that Mussolini has executed 2,000 and jailed 40,000; Hitler has executed a million and imprisoned three millions; and that Stalin, according to his own published figures has killed off 2,700,000 and jailed 6,000,000. The Russian figures do not include five million who starved to death as the result of ruthless agricultural policies.—The Argonaut.

Canadian Women Doing Excellent Work.

The women of the 9000 Red Cross Branches and groups throughout Canada will concentrate on the making of half a million articles of clothing which are needed urgently for refugees and evacuees in Britain. Mrs. Wallace Campbell, National Chairman of the Women's War Work Committee of the Canadian Red Cross, said yesterday.

“I am confident that we can accomplish this in the two-month period,” Mrs. Campbell said. “In the meantime, we are assisting the suffering people of Britain with supplies from our Canadian Red Cross warehouses in England.”

“We shall continue to make hospital supplies,” Mrs. Campbell added, “and, of course, our knitting for the active service forces will not slacken. Two way mitts and gloves, sweaters and seamen's stockings are needed in large numbers, and all other knitted articles, with the exception of wristlets, are still required.”

Praising the quality of the work done by the women of Canada during the past year, Mrs. Campbell said, “We have had the greatest co-operation from all sides. The women follow our advice that they should knit and sew the things that are needed most rather than the things they themselves like to do best.”

Up to August 31st 50,719 cases containing more than 6 million articles were shipped overseas by the Canadian Red Cross. Out of the million dollars contributed last November a sum of 2 million was spent on the purchase of materials from which the women of Canada made the majority of these supplies. Part of the money raised during the Canadian Red Cross Society's present appeal for funds will be used to buy more materials for urgently needed supplies.

Ken and Moose Clash

The tables were turned the other day, when moose got Ken instead of Ken getting moose.

While hunting in the Clearwater country a moose charged Ken McCoy and trampled him somewhat. Ken couldn't shoot, because the moose had no horns. He said that if the moose had had horns there'd have been no Ken.

The hunting party included Ken and Walter McCoy, Harold Tighe and Sam Thompson. They brought in their full quota of four moose.

Mrs. Orde was presented with a fountain pen and Mr. Orde with a bill-fold, while Marjorie received many small gifts from her little friends.

The evening was spent in dancing, supper being served at midnight, when Mr. Arnold Hogg sang “Sierra Sue.”
